The app is not developed by Mozilla.
Source code available on GitHub.

Why should you use the app?

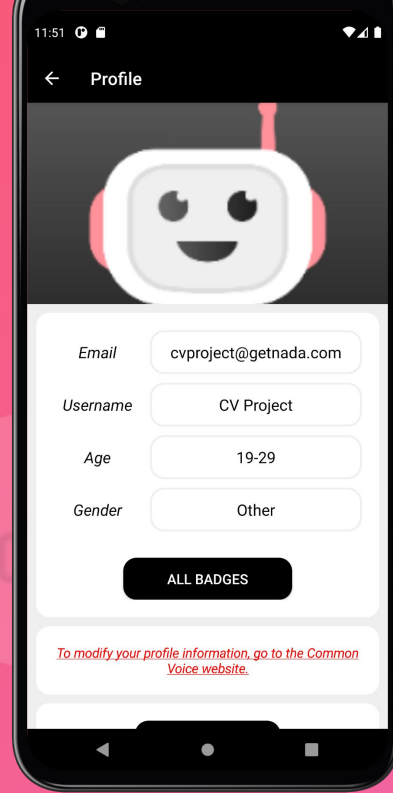

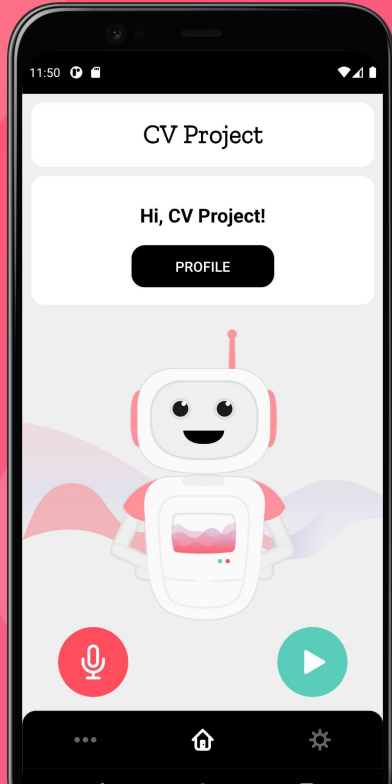

- ❑ The app, compared to the website, is light and clean. And it's open-source.
- ❑ Audio quality of smartphones usually higher than that of laptops.
- ❑ Customisable: dark theme, autoplay, etc.
- ❑ Offline mode: validate and record when you are not connected to an Internet connection as well!
- ❑ Designed for everyone: intuitive and everything just a "tap"

Offline mode

How can an app improve the whole experience?

The Common Voice project doesn't provide an official native Android app, this mean the experience is limited.

What do I mean?

For example, the app permits you to contribute without an Internet connection ("Offline mode").

The app is realised to be as accessible as possible, and as customisable as possible.
